

Mission, Vision, and Objectives of the Community Service and Environmental Development Unit

For the Academic Year 2025–2026

Mission

The Community Service and Environmental Development Unit seek to become a center for spreading health culture and awareness among all groups of the local and regional community.

Vision

Enhancing healthcare services (information, practices, and behaviors) inside and outside different sectors to serve individuals, families, and society through the provision of healthcare services.

Objectives

- Spreading health awareness among different segments of society (children under five years old, school students, adolescents and addressing their psychological and social problems, women of childbearing and postnatal age, and the elderly).
- Encouraging the participation of various community stakeholders to improve public health.
- Promoting mutual cooperation between service beneficiaries and the college.

- Enhancing community awareness of the role of the Faculty of Nursing.
- Directly identifying health problems within the surrounding community.
- Providing advisory and reference centers for the local community.
- Developing and implementing the college's annual community plan through workshops, conferences, and seminars for the surrounding community.
- Publishing scientific, cultural and sports articles by students, faculty members, and their assistants in both the college environmental bulletin and the university magazine dedicated to community service.
- Establishing protocols to continuously activate community service in the agricultural, industrial, health, and educational sectors within the governorate.
- Participating in medical convoys and healthcare campaigns.
- Conducting applied research related to community service and environmental development.
